

WNTC Workshop Has Varied Program Schedule

Miss Elsie Donnelly, member of the PSTC English department faculty and director of the Radio Workshop of PSTC and Clarkson, announced recently that the workshop is planning a varied schedule of programs for presentation over the campus radio station WNTC during the coming semester.

The purpose of the Radio Workshop is to allow an opportunity for students of the two colleges to gain experience in radio through participation in the production of programs. This experience includes script writing, directing, and acting. During the past semester, the workshop group has presented an interview program with students at PSTC and Clarkson from other parts of the U. S. and foreign countries, a reading of Thomas Wolke's prose, an original documentary script on the nature of radio, musical and children's programs, and a radio dramatization of the well-known play "Rossum's Universal Robots." In the past, workshop programs have been broadcast on Monday evenings at 9:30. However, this may become subject to change for next semester because of the installation of a new console and the construction of another studio.

additions will greatly facilitate program expansion at WNTC.

In addition, Miss Donnelly stated that the workshop will cooperate closely with the new radio course at PSTC during the coming semester. This class, which is open to elementary student teachers primarily, but also to others with permission of the instructor, is a one semester elective course which allows three credits towards a degree. There will be three one-hour classes per week with the radio station serving as a lab. The course will afford an opportunity for specific training in radio speaking, techniques of broadcasting, programing, actual productions and, moreover, a recognition and utilization of the educational potential in radio. It will aim also to develop script writers capable of adapting material for radio presentation.

Serving as advisors with Miss Donnelly to the Radio Workshop are Mr. Mark Luca and Mr. Rocque Dominick of the faculty at PSTC. Students who are at present members of the workshop include Norma and John Harris, Mary Jane Holloran, Doris Jones, Patricia Powers, Roger Burkins, Mary Jane Hughes, Candy Walsoe, Marilyn Dorn, Nancy Chappell, Bernie Farrell, Ruth O'Dell, Andy Ryan, Sally Koe, and F. Patrick Weldon of PSTC. From Clarkson there are Robert Tyldesly, Clifford Cramer, Vaughn Weidell, and Jal Perlis, who has had professional experience and serves in the capacity of engineer for the workshop programs. Any student who wishes to become associated with the Radio Workshop is invited to contact Miss Donnelly or any member.
